THE CREATORS

Coming from a broken home but raised by a loving mother, being bullied by the popular crowd because he was different and weird, growing up angry with those who made fun of his younger sister (who was born with William's Syndrome), rejected by his life-long childhood sweetheart, and losing his terminally ill best friend at a young age, this is the fictional story of Muck Sticky's real life.

Muck starred as himself in MTV's Emmy winning series '$5 Cover', and has appeared on The Tonight Show w/Jay Leno, The View, Star Magazine, TMZ, LIFE, E! Fashion Police, The T.V. Guide Channel, The Hollywood Reporter, The LA Times, and many more. He has also appeared on stage/screen with Lady Gaga, Katy Perry, Snoop Dogg, Taylor Swift, Juicy J, Post Malone, and countless other well know artists.

His mother, Linda Kaye Lowery, is an accomplished author, artist, and co-creator of 'Dig That, Zeebo Newton'. As they continue to develop new projects, and produce them for a fraction of the Hollywood norm, they are one of the most buzzed-about creative teams in entertainment.

Muck Sticky began his music career in 1999. His first full album was released in 2004, and he quickly became the #2 musical-comedy artist on Myspace, second only to Weird Al Yankovic. Since then he has had an exponential rise as an independent music and video artist.

His songs have been used in countless movies, television shows, and social media videos, and his fans have made numerous music videos where they dress up like him and lip-sync his songs.

After touring from 2002-2014, developing a following of more than 250,000 social media followers, releasing 19 albums that have sold over 10 MILLION downloads and streams, and creating more than 50 music videos that have garnered more than 50 MILLION views online, Muck has developed a fanbase that spans more than 150 countries worldwide.

Muck also holds the world record for the most consecutive days wearing pajama pants (over 5,844 as of 7/2/18) as his public attire. Not the same pair, of course.

One of the central locations in the film is the Shelby Forest General Store, located just a few miles north of Memphis, TN, alongside the Mississippi River. First opening its doors in 1934, this iconic landmark serves as a staple in the community and is famous for its appearances in PBS Crossroads. Please watch by CLICKING HERE. Justin Timberlake has also publicly promoted it numerous times, including a direct mention of it during a famous Grammy speech. His father, Randy Timberlake, plays our pastor in the movie.

There have been two feature stories about our film in USA Today's Commercial Appeal, written by film critic John Beifuss.

This first was published during the production of the film in May of 2017. Read it by CLICKING HERE.

The second was published after a review of the full film in January of 2018. Read it by CLICKING HERE.

"WOW. This was a wonderful experience. Loved the story, the way it was shot, and especially the acting." - Carol Burnett

"The authentic rural locations, the beautiful aerial photography, and the singular enthusiasm of star-director-writer Muck Sticky distinguish 'Zeebo Newton' from the more conventional indie-film competition." - John Beifuss, USA Today Network
